BISHOP GARRIGAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

Bishop Philip Joseph Garrigan, head of the Catholic see of Sioux City, Iowa, and one of the founders and first vice rector of Catholic University in this city, died yesterday at Sioux City. His death is thought to be the result, in part, of a severe attack of poisoning suffered three years ago, from which his system had never fully recovered. He was seventy-nine years old.

Bishop Garrigan was born in Ireland in 1840, coming to America about 1853. He received his early education in the public schools of Massachusetts and took up his studies for the priesthood at St. Charles College, Ellipton City, Md. He continued the study of philosophy and theology at St. Joseph's Provincial Seminary, then located at Troy, N. Y. He was ordained a Roman Catholic priest June 11, 1870, and two years later was made director of Troy Seminary. He was pastor of St. Bernard's Church at Fitchburg, Mass., from 1875 to 1888.

In 1888 he was called to Washington to help establish Catholic University in Brookland. Acting as first vice rector of the university, he spent fourteen years of untiring labor in building and extending the scope of the institution. He established Trinity College for women in Brookland in 1900 and it was he who decided the policies of both institutions in building and extending the scope of the institution. He considered this his greatest work. When the new diocese of Sioux City was established in 1902, he was assigned as its first bishop, the consecration taking place May 25, 1902. Under his direction the diocese established all its churches, schools, and charitable institutions.

MINORS' BASIC PAY IS REVISED DOWN

would be left in school. These are the principles I believe the board should have recognized in its order—which it did recognize in its original order—and I could not conscientiously do otherwise than oppose the modification of that order.

"In the position I take on this question, I am in accord with the attitude of organized labor throughout the District, as expressed by our spokesman at the hearing last week, and with the attitude of the National Consumers' League, the Industrial Department of the National Y. W. C. A. and the child labor office of the Children's Bureau, the International Welfare Association, and educators both local and national."

Miss Ernestine L. Friedmann, national field industrial secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who has made a study of women's employment in different cities, stated today that the mercantile industry is the most unstandardized in the United States. For years, she stated, women have been unable to organize because of the great variance found in the wages paid by store owners to their women employees, and the living conditions under which they have had to live.

See Hope for Women.
Washington's step in fixing a minimum wage for children upon the same basis as that fixed for women was the first ray of hope held out to the thousands of women employed in the country for a form of protection. She explained this protection in the following light:

"The minimum wage of $14.50 fixed for women employees is not contested by the employers, but they do protest the same minimum wage for children. By adopting this minimum wage for children, the women are protected. As long as an employer has to pay the same wage on minors as he pays to his women workers, he is, of course, going to employ the women. If he can secure cheaper labor by hiring children, he will do it and get rid of the women to whom he has to pay a higher salary. That is the reason why women's organizations all over the country are indignant at this first step in Washington."

Miss Friedmann has been in work of investigating the conditions among working women in other cities for more than eight years. She stated that other cities have had long years of experience in the employment of minors and adults their viewpoint is the more practical and helpful.

"The fact that the board has decided to date experience in minors from sixteen years of age, and for two months from the date that the amended order goes into effect, will be a helpful circumstance for the workers."

D. C. HOUSEWIVES USE CORN SUGAR
Corn sugar, syrups and other sugar substitutes have come to be in demand because of the sugar shortage. These articles, heretofore almost unknown to Washington housewives, are now being eagerly sought.

Corn sugar has gained especial popularity for sweetening cakes and drinks and for cooking. It is a brown, globular-grained substance of a peculiar sweet taste. It can be bought for 10 cents a pound in Center Market, and at a standard in Convention Hall.

It is said to be an excellent substitute for sugar. White syrups, made of corn and cane sugars, have also been in demand, and local dealers report increased sales.

BAGS 'EM ON THE FLY.
SPOKANE, WASH., Oct. 15.—D. F. Witel, Jeweler, brought home a plane full of ducks this morning after a shooting trip. He bagged 'em on the fly.

PLAN DISCUSSION OF MINIMUM PAY

The application of the minimum wage will be discussed Thursday evening at 6:15 o'clock at a meeting of a committee of arrangements under the auspices of the Women's Trade Union League, with women employed in the stores.

The meeting will be held at the headquarters of the league, 1423 New York avenue. Miss Gertrude McNally, of the National Federation of Federal Employees, is the chairman of the committee, and other members are Misses Ina Courtney, Helen Bryan, Nora James and Mrs. Charles T. Thompson.

M. AND M. DISAPPOINTED AT RULING ON MINORS' WAGE

The decision of the Minimum Wage Board in regard to the revision of the minimum wage for minors in mercantile establishments of the District is a disappointment to the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. Charles J. Columbus, secretary of the association, said today:

"The board," he said, "has failed to recognize the splendid principle which the brief on the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association set forth, namely, that the law did not contemplate and that a full measure of justice could not be done where the wage of the minor approached that of the adult."

"The minimum wage board has merely made a difference of 50 cents between the minor and the adult for six months of minority and a minimum of $14.50 is in itself entirely too high."

"The money consideration is by no means paramount. The creation of substantially the same minimum for a minor as for an adult creates a false standard and will tend to bring the minimum wage law into disrepute."

"We have conscientiously contended that the order as originally promulgated, with respect to minors would have the effect of drawing large numbers of children from the schools attracted by a high minimum, higher in its entirety than has ever been known in the history of the time. Thus the magnet of the dollar would be ever before the child in school, whereas a lower minimum would have the opposite effect. Our appeal further urged that the recommendation in this matter in that the recommendation provided that time in school would count for experience. Inasmuch as those who framed the recommendation have had long years of experience in the employment of minors and adults their viewpoint is the more practical and helpful."

"The fact that the board has decided to date experience in minors from sixteen years of age, and for two months from the date that the amended order goes into effect, will be a helpful circumstance for the workers."

DIAMONDS VANISH AFTER 'FLAT' PARTY

Russian Prince Misses Part of Crown Jewels Just Smuggled Into London.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The police are working today to solve a mystery involving the disappearance of part of the crown jewels, formerly owned by the Czarina of Russia, from the flat of Prince Felix Youssouff, slayer of the Russian monk Rasputin. The jewels, all diamonds, disappeared after a flat party in the prince's flat which lasted all night. They were valued at more than $75,000.

According to the story told police, the stones were brought from Russia on a train, being smuggled past the Bolshevik guards by some unexplained ruse. They were turned over to Prince Youssouff. On Monday night the prince dined out and met several persons, who he took to his apartments after a theater party. A hilarious night was spent, and after the guests had gone the diamonds could not be found.

N.Y. BY FRIDAY, PLAN OF 'FLYING PARSON'

Lieut. Maynard in Nebraska Ready to Resume Eastward Flight Today.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Lieut. B. W. Maynard, the "flying parson," first trans-continental pilot in the air service reliability race, to hop off on his return trip, today was ready to take the air eastward from Battle Mountain, Nev., where he spent the night.

Lieutenant Maynard left San Francisco soon after noon yesterday. His plane is to reach New York Friday.

Three other fliers, Major Carl Hays and Lieut. E. C. Kist, of Minnesota, and Capt. Harry Smith, of San Francisco, were eligible to begin return flights today. All three planned early take-offs.

At the end of the sixth day of the contest nineteen planes had been eliminated by crashes, thirty-one were still flying on the first 2,700-mile trip; thirteen had completed the first leg, and one had started the second, 2,700-mile trip—the final trans-continental lap. Seven contestants were expected to arrive at the end of their first cross-country flight today.
